FIVE MINERS ARE KILLED

By Fire in a Pennsylvania Coal Mine.

NAMES OF THE MEN KILLED.

The Fire Started at One O'Clock This Morning—Mine Full of Smoke and Flame.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 30.—Five miners, part of night shift at the Vonstarch slope Delaware and Hudson Coal Mine, in the northern part of the city, were killed today by fire in the main gangway.

The killed were:

Thos. Hill, foreman.
Thos. McDonnell, company hand.
John Yankowsky, laborer.
John Morgan, track layer.
John J. Farrell, pump runner.

The fire started at one o'clock this morning in a shanty on the slope where the vein branches off. Very soon the timbers and walls of coal were set ablaze and volumes of smoke swept down the slope fifteen hundred feet to the Big Clark vein.

The city fire department was on hand very early, but the suffocating and blinding smoke prevented the firemen from getting near the flames.

By ten o'clock this morning the fire had almost burned itself out. Besides the five men suffocated, three were brought out unconscious.

THE LECTURE.

And the Epworth League Entertainment Last Night.

The entertainment given last night by the Epworth League of West Market street church was a decided success. At 8 o'clock the National League Hymn was sung, followed by prayer by Rev. Dr. T. N. Ivey, after which Prof. Chas. L. Raper, in fifty chosen words introduced Prof. Edwin Mims, of Trinity College, who addressed the assemblage on "Literature and Life," showing himself master of the subject, and treating it in a strong and forcible manner, dwelling at length upon what the poets teach us and how we should treat them, discussing the common misconception of poetry. The poet, said he, is he who leads us into the very bottom of things; poetry is the back-ground of dreamland; poets are producers of dreamland and mist; they teach us to see and appreciate the deepest, noblest and best in God, nature and the realities of human life; the poet speaks of eternal beauty and truth and of the sunset secret of God's glory. He showed himself master of the teachings of the great poets of English literature, and gave quotations, illustrating how they fight against the mean, common material world.

After the lecture came a social meeting, complimentary to the young ladies of G. F. College, where all mingled in pleasant social chat for an hour. Refreshments were served, after which the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Weaver. All present enjoyed the occasion immensely.

The Columbia Chainless.

The much talked of Columbia chainless bicycle is on exhibition today at Wingate Bros., on West Market street where it can be seen until about ten o'clock tonight.

The agent of the Pope Manufacturing Company, Mr. J. E. Humes is here and will take pleasure in showing the machine and in explaining the many virtues and advantages it possesses over the chain bicycles.

Messrs. Wingate Bros. are the agents in this city and any who are interested in the Columbia chainless are requested to see them. They will receive a supply of these machines in a few days and will let you know it through these columns.

Mr. Humes goes from here to Charlotte to exhibit the chainless there. We judge from the interest manifested in this wheel that its sales will be large.

Something New, A Klondike Social.

The ladies of the St. Barnabas Church will furnish gold diggings for the multitude who can't go to Alaska. Come and dig for the glittering yellow nuggets, every one is entitled to stake out a claim. Nov. 9th is the date and the Rectory the place, cor. North Elm and Price streets.

A Party of Them Entertained Here Today.

About one o'clock today a party of thirty-eight members of the New England Manufacturers Association, arrived here by special train on the Southern.

This special committee to have charge of the reception and entertainment of the New England visitors.

The party was met at the depot and driven to the Benbow where an elegant dinner was served. About 2:30 o'clock the visitors were taken for a carriage drive through the principal streets, and out to the Finishing mill. Returning to the city they left at 3:30 for Salisbury.

Their stay with us was quite short, but they had time to express themselves as being well pleased with their stop and with Greensboro.

A SHORT RELIGIOUS SERVICE.

A Number of Prominent Men Have Offered to Make Short Addresses—Bryan on George's Death.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

New York, Oct. 30.—Save the tragic death of President Garfield the taking away of no public man since Abraham Lincoln has caused such a shock as the death of Henry George. His sons Henry and Richard and two brothers Thomas and Valentine watched the corpse last night.

Hamilton Garland, of the committee of funeral arrangements, says that the names of a number of prominent gentlemen, who offer to make addresses at the services at the Grand Central Palace tomorrow, have been received. No selections have been made as yet.

It is the intention to have a short religious service of non-sectarian nature, after which will be short addresses. Rev. Dr. McGlynn will participate in the services.

Bryan on George's Death.

Logan, O., Oct. 29.—William Jennings Bryan telegraphs: "I have just received a dispatch announcing the death of Henry George. The suddenness with which the summons came will make more keen the sorrow which the public generally feel at the death of so great, so pure and sensible a man. He made his name familiar to the reading public the world around. Those who agreed with his theories found in him an ideal leader, while those who opposed him admitted his ability and moral courage. He was one of the foremost thinkers of the world. His death will prove a loss to literature, society and politics."

THE LIBRARY RECEPTION.

Charming Young Ladies of Eight and Ninth Grades Serve Refreshments.

TELEGRAM BUREAU. HIGH POINT, N. C., Oct. 30, '97.

In the future all that will be necessary to insure the success of any social function is to announce that the young ladies of the eight and ninth grades of the High Point Graded School, will serve refreshments to the guests. The library reception at the school building last night was a success. The friends of the school turned out well and donations were contributed both of money and books. An entertaining program was rendered after which choice refreshments were served in a most fascinating manner by the young ladies of the two higher grades. The reception as a whole is a credit to the Misses Fulgum, under whose direction it was arranged.

Gentry's Dog and Pony show is billed for High Point Nov. 1st.

Mr. Clark informs us that Prof. Holt was so well pleased with his painting of Uncle Frank Caldwell that an order was at once given for a life size portrait of Prof. Holt's father.

Claud and Fletcher Barbee attend the reception at West Market Street church last night. A young lady from the college wanted to know if all the High Point boys were that good looking.

Capt. B. J. Fisher, of the Benbow, is in the city this afternoon.

Chas. Ragan went down to Greensboro on the 11:40 train.

John Marsh is in Greensboro this afternoon on business.

Bank Burglars in Ontario.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

The safe door was completely blown off and forced through the vault door which appears to have been closed to deaden the noise. Two thousand dollars were stolen.

Facts Worth Studying.

If the Southern Stock-Mutual pays no larger dividends than the 20 per cent. now paid, and the business increases during the next seven years in the same ratio it has increased during the last three years, the actual saving for the ten years to policy-holders in North and South Carolina will be $194,822.00, and to the policy-holders in Greensboro alone, $26,237.00. Besides this the Company's assets (reinsurance reserve and surplus) represented by still larger figures will be kept at home and invested in the state. What better investment can the public make than by upholding an institution like this?

PERTINENT TO THE DISCUSSION.

Without endorsing the first sentence as a whole we give the following from the Winston Journal as being pertinent to the discussion precipitated by the unfortunate interview of Governor Russell:

"The accepting of railroad passes by national, state or county officials is, in itself, no harm as far as we can see, if the persons accepting the same have enough manhood about them to deal fairly with everybody and with special privileges to none. It is not the accepting of the passes that causes harm, for if the party accepting the same possesses any principle, whatever, he will still deal fairly and honestly between the people and the roads over which his passes may be good. So we repeat it is not the accepting of passes alone that causes the trouble, but it is the elevating of men to office whose honor and integrity can be bought with the price of a railroad pass. Don't put all the blame on the railroad officials, but place it on your own shoulders, where it properly belongs, and in the future see to it that men are elected to office whose honor and decisions cannot be purchased even if they do accept from the railroads complimentary passes over their lines of road."

While there is not of necessity any harm in expecting a free pass courtesy accepted impose certain obligations that it may be difficult to disregard without appearing discourteous in turn; obligations too that may conflict to a degree with official duties. It is better therefore to avoid the "appearance of evil." Let it be emphasized however that the main trouble lies in "elevating men to office whose honor and integrity can be bought with the price of a railroad pass."

The death of Henry George will have one effect upon the mayoralty race in New York—it will put General Tracy out of the race, if he was ever in it. His following, whatever may be done at this late hour, will struggle largely to Low and Van Wyck.

Henry George has been a rather unique figure in the life of New York. Essentially radical he yet managed to gain and hold the esteem and respect of men who were diametrically opposed to him in economics and in politics. This was due, perhaps, to the fact that he was a man eminently virile, of more than ordinary ability and a model citizen in many respects.

George Pullman's two sons having received an annuity of $3,000 will now proceed to develop an amount of filial affection for their mother that will attract the attention of the moral pointers of the country.

GENERAL LONGSTREET has no cause to complain at his lot. He has secured a beautiful young bride and an excellent office all in the short period of a few weeks. Luck never deserts some folks.

Ex-Mayor Edwin W. Curtis, of Boston, having taken unto himself a wife as a result of the anti-bachelor agitation we may expect the agitation to agitate with renewed zest.

SATURDAY'S LITERARY CHAT.

[All books and magazines mentioned below may be had at Wharton's book store.]

The College Message for October is at hand. The articles contributed are "James Hunter, Regulator," a new installment of Professor Raper's "The Church and Schools of North Carolina," "Carlyle's Message to the Individual" and "A Ramble Among Old Newspapers."

This installment of Mr. Raper's important history deals with the earlier schools of the Province of Carolina. It will be remembered that the first installment dealt with the forming of the settlements and noted the origin of those forces which ultimately gave rise to the various schools of the state. After noting that the first schools were the fruit of the church of England and calling attention to the fact that there were only three schools under the proprietors, those of Griffin, Adams and Mashburn, the writer takes up Newbern Academy which was founded about 1764. This school received a donation of fifteen pounds annually from the Society. The history of this school is brought down to the civil war.

Edenton Academy was founded in 1770 by private subscription. After tracing the history of this school, Bishop Cheshire is quoted as saying that "only the University had a greater influence upon the history of the state than these two academies."

An exceedingly interesting section is devoted to a discussion of the early Presbyterian schools which is not completed in this number.

There has been no more interesting or valuable contribution to the history of the state in years than this book by Mr. Raper. Most of it is material for the first time put in shape accessible to the general reader. It bears unmistakable evidences of that painstaking care and minute accuracy which alone renders history reliable.

The Atlantic Monthly for November opens with a criticism by Hamilton W. Mabie of the new life of Tennyson by his son Hallam Tennyson. Mr. Mabie is delighted with this biography which must necessarily be the final authority on so many points in the life of one whom the critic justly terms the truest exponent of his age and its sweetest singer.

One feature of the biography is a considerable amount of poetry which is worthy of presentation, but which the infinitely nice discrimination of the poet excluded from his collected works. It is very properly embodied in his biography where it contributes to the general understanding of the poet's life and methods of work without endangering his reputation. What he rejected others are scarcely privileged to caviar at.

It is a book which no one of those will do without who have found in Tennyson at once the philosopher glimpsing "the glory of the sum of things," the exquisite poet of Ulysses, Tithonus, the Idyls and Maud and the strong soul facing with transcendent calm the fate that waited after "Crossing the Bar."

Full of good sense is the paper by John Fiske on "Forty Years of Bacon-Shakespeare Folly." He justly says that the supporters of the Bacon theory have been chiefly those minds "akin to the circle squarers and inventors of perpetual motion." Those who have been struck with the parallelisms of Ignatius Donnelly will find in this strong paper an antidote for any doubts that may lurk as to the authorship of Hamlet and Macbeth. Another striking paper is "The Coming Literary Revival," by J. S. Tunison.

Harpers for next month is without anything to distinguish it from the ordinary fairly readable number. Always below its reputation is preserves a pretty general level of matter that is worth reading. Richard Harding Davis tells how he saw the Graeco-Turkish war from the Greek lines and crawled in at a window and crawled out again and how the grasshoppers sang in the grass and the shells sang in the air and the soldiers sang in the trenches all in the style to which most readers of current literature know too well, need the help of comment. Frank Stockton's queer "Great Stone of Sardis" reaches its final resting place and Nasen is sung in a "sonnet of fourteen lines," with apologies to Hibernia. William Dean Howells takes a day from his eulogies of Paul Lawrence Dunbar and puts in a story, while Remington unearths "Joshua Goodenough's old letter" apparently for the purpose of illustrating it. The "Century's Progress in Biology" is worth reading and preserving.

The Cosmopolitan is so good that somebody walked off with it before the reviewer had read anything beside "The War of the Worlds" which promises to surpass the thirty years struggle by some aeons.

It's Too Provoking.

"There you go again, tracking up my clean floor and fresh carpets with your muddy feet! Haven't I told you to wipe them before you come into the house?" "Don't scold so, mother. I do try to get them clean, but I just can't do it with nothing but an old piece of carpet for a foot mat. If you'd just send down to Odell's and get one of their Cocoa mats, I'd promise you to give you no more trouble. I was down there yesterday, and they had just opened up the greatest lot of them—beauties. And the clerk said they are cheaper than ever."

Platt on George's Death.

A special to the Washington Star gives the following account of Mr. Platt's action with reference to the death of Henry George:

No word from Thomas C. Platt, the recognized leader of the Republican forces. Newspapermen sought him in his office, bearing in their minds the generous words of the Tammany leaders. Platt has been bitterly assailed by George. "He has even been called a common thief."

Crocker had the grave end all the bitterness between the Thomas Jefferson Democrat and himself. What would Platt say? His office was thronged with reporters soliciting an expression on Mr. George's death. In answer to these repeated requests he sent from his private office the following message:

"I am too busy. I have really nothing to say."

THE NEW HIDDEN HAND.

Cora Van Tassell and Company at the Academy of Music.

Miss Cora Van Tassell and company will open a three night engagement at the Academy of Music, Monday, November 1st, in a repertoire of high class comedies.

The introduction play will be Mrs. Emma Southworth's famous story, "The New Hidden Hand," Miss Van Tassell appearing as Archie, a newsboy, and as Capitola, the heiress. In both roles she is perfectly at ease and everything she does is done with energy, grace and good effect. She appears to be constantly on the alert for opportunities to make her stage business brisk and effective.

It is a perfect pleasure to witness her performances for one is impressed with the idea that she is not acting but is simply following the bent of her natural inclination and making art in a train of events in real life rather than the mimic life of the stage.

She is supported by the young and handsome actor Wm. Stuart and a company of recognized artists. During the action of the play new and novel specialties will be introduced.

Popular prices will prevail—10, 20, 30 cents. No higher. Adv.

MAIL ROBBERS LOCATED.

They Took $14,000 from Registered Mail Packages.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 29.—It is reported here that the persons responsible for the disappearance of the $14,000 package sent from Chicago to a Utah bank, has been located.

The men who took the package, it is said, are known here. Other men who had a hand in the robbery have been under surveillance in other cities, and it is said several arrests will be made shortly.

The package referred to left Chicago several weeks ago in the United States mails as registered matter and disappeared after leaving Omaha.

The Southern Tariff Association has not made any headway in its war on the Southern Stock-Mutual company, of this city. In fact, the Southern Stock is stronger today than ever before in its history. Not a single policy has it cancelled because of the delusive inducements held out by the companies forming the Association, while the effective endorsement it has received here at home has given its business a stimulus that is more than gratifying. Without doubt the company will win in this unequal fight, and it will be nothing less than a victory of right over might.—Greensboro Patriot.

Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with la grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into hasty consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at C. E. Holton's drug store.

Are You Subject to Attacks of COLIC?

If So, There is No Need to Suffer.

Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy

WILL CURE YOU

For several years I had been subject to severe attacks of cramp colic. Sometimes they would last me an hour and hardly a week passed that I did not have several attacks. I tried everything that was suggested, but found no relief. During these attacks the muscles of the arm and leg were terribly drawn and the whole body was cramped. I was advised to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, which gave me relief at once, but not until I had taken two dozen bottles was I entirely cured. It was eight years ago since I took the remedy, and I have not had a touch of the trouble since.

Minstrel Tonight.

The Georgia Minstrels arrived in the city yesterday. "Billy Kersands" arrived later, bringing his mouth on a flat-car. The show was good, to use "Billy's" expression, it was "hot stuff." Those deserving special mention were "Jalvan," the Hindoo juggler; "Gauze," in his clever female impersonations, the "Crescent City Quartette," and last but not least, "William, of the open face."

The above is from the Butte (Montana) Daily Miner, and speaks worlds in a brief manner.

This season Richards & Pringle's Georgias are combined with Rusco & Holland's Operatic Minstrels, and bring to this city the largest and best colored minstrel show ever organized. At the Academy of Music tonight.

TRAGEDY IN HIGH LIFE.

For the Especial Benefit of the Telegram's Young Readers.

Following their custom two English sparrows, like the irreclaimable little vagabond arabs they are, were delving in rubbish heaps and fighting occasionally for the pure love of it, when by chance they were fattered together by a thread. Now in all their nomadic, quarreling existence such a thing had never befallen either before and so they rose up in fright to fly away from the troublesome thing that was winding about their legs. But it held together and a telegraph wire coming in between them found themselves tied up in mid air where their helpless fluttering attracted the attention of a man. Now the man was determined to help them out of the difficulty. The vagabonds were some thirty feet from the ground and the man was not thirty feet high, so he secured a long pole and tied a knife on the end of it and began to make passes at the string. Of course everybody who saw him from a distance very naturally thought he had gone doft and was trying to cut the wires and he soon had a big crowd of spectators who staid to see the outcome. Of course every man knew better how it should be done than the sympathetic man with the pole. But the man with the pole, who had ideas of his own, continued his swipes. Finally he freed one of the captives who ungratefully flew away without thanking him. And the crowd of a hundred or so continued to suggest. The man with the pole continued to swipe. Then to the horror of the onlookers the tragedy befell, he cut off the leg of the remaining captive who flew away with a twitter of pain. Now to the end of his life he will tell how a big, cruel man cut off his leg; and the story will lose nothing in the telling under sheltered eaves and on warm stable floors where the little gossips gather when winter comes.

Witchwork.

Those who come to us for Fall Shoes sometimes think it must be witchwork that makes it possible for us to fit them so quickly, perfectly and cheaply. Not a bit of it! It's not witchwork, but hard work, that does it.

While you were fishing and loafing and resting this summer, we were at work to get this stock in shape—which work is what worked the witchwork.

For Example:

We are offering this week: Ladies' Vici Kid, hand sewed button shoes, London toe, patent tip, B, C, D and E width, at $3.50, worth $5.00. Ladies' cloth top button or lace shoes, patent tip, com. toe, C, D and E widths, sizes 1 to 7, at $2.50. This shoe would be cheap at $3.50. We have a full line of Felt Slippers for men and women.
